Risk Disclosure – ChowVest (For Savings Plans)

1. Investment Risk

- A portion of your savings (the financial allocation) may be invested in low-risk instruments such as treasury bills, money market funds, or government bonds.
- While these instruments are considered low-risk, they are not risk-free. Possible risks include:
 - Market risk: Interest rate changes could affect returns.
 - Credit risk: The issuer of a bond or instrument could default (unlikely for government securities, but possible).
 - Liquidity risk: In extreme cases, investments might not be readily convertible to cash.
- ChowVest does not guarantee a specific return. The benefit you receive is the locked price of food, not interest on your savings.

2. Price Lock Risk

- The price lock is guaranteed for up to 90 days. If you do not complete your savings within that period, the lock expires.
- While we pass down price decreases, extreme market conditions (e.g., hyperinflation, supply collapse) may affect our ability to honor the lock. We maintain a buffer fund to mitigate this, but no guarantee is absolute.

3. Delivery Risk

- We rely on third-party logistics providers. Delays, damage, or loss during delivery are possible. We are not liable for third-party failures, but we will assist in resolution.

4. Cancellation & Refund Risk

- Cancellation fees apply. Once we have purchased inventory or entered financial instruments on your behalf, refunds may be partial or unavailable.

5. Regulatory Risk

- Financial and food-tech regulations may change. We will comply with applicable laws, but changes could affect our operations or your savings plan.

6. No Deposit Insurance

- Your savings are not insured by NDIC or any government agency. They are held in our operational accounts and managed as described in our terms.

7. Acknowledgment

- By using ChowVest's savings plans, you acknowledge and accept these risks. You are advised to save only what you can afford to commit.
